Report on the 2 days' workshop on the title

IGNITE YOUR POTENTIAL THROUGH EFFICIENT LIFE SKILLS

Organized of DFST, IKGPTU for its students

A 2-days workshop was entitled Ignite Your Potential Through Efficient Life Skills was organized by Department of Food Science and Technology, IKGPTU, Kapurthala on December 09-10, 2021, Ms. Manjula Salaria, CEO of The Transformers Value Educators was the resource person of the workshop. She interacted with the students and make all the students to actively participate through various intriguing activities. The students of courses like BSc Food Technology 1st year, MSc Food Technology 1st year and 2nd year, MSc Clinical Research 1st year and 2nd year participated in the program.

The workshop begins with the formal inauguration session at auditorium where Deputy Dean Dr. Satvir Singh, HoD Dr Rajneesh Kant Sachdev, Deputy Director CR&A Mr. Navdeepak Sandhu, Resource person Ms. Manjula Salaria and Assistant Professor Dr. Gazal Sharma formally inaugurated the event. The participating student were very excited about the workshop and hence it started on time in the seminar hall of IKGPTU. The event started with Saraswati Vandana and Lamp Lightning. All the dignitaries shared their kind and thought-provoking message and blessings with the august gathering. Ms. Salaria took over the session from there and interacted with the students. The first activity was given to the students to draw themselves related to any nature object or organism on the piece of paper. A few students and dignitaries were keen to share what they drew. Students were able to express themselves easily through drawing. This activity was an eye opener about the individual personality of the participants. For the further activities the participants were taken to the lawn where they started with their different outdoor activities with stating their values that they follow with hearts to acknowledge their gratitude. Students were categorized based on what value they chose amongst thankfulness, health, responsible, friendly and to prove these values they were given different physical activities. Ms. Salaria taught students about teamwork by splitting them into 5 groups, in which she asked students to build the highest tower with newspapers and told the students about time management and team work. Students were enjoying and indulge in the activity. Then, these groups were asked to talk about their weakest point in life to make them more comfortable with each other. An exaggerate version of rock, paper and scissor that is SHIKSHA, SHISHTACHAR AND PATHRAV was performed by the students to make them aware about education, civility, and power. Furthermore, dodge ball activity was performed to make students cheer for their teammates and also to gain individuality. The second day started with self-reflection from the first day sessions while doing breathing exercise. Which move further with theater was performed by the students on sensitive topics like generation and gender gap, so that students could know what it is like to be in someone else's shoe. Then, students were asked to capture the surroundings as a photographer and camera to make them realize the importance of their own perspective. Then, three islands of students were made with different disabilities like an island was paralyzed, other was blind and third was deaf and dumb and they had to help each other to reach the safe island. This activity thought the students' compassion and empathy. Then, girls and boys were separated and asked to move without using their legs. From this activity students learned about gender individuality. Then each student was asked to write something about the person from the group who inspired them the most which made the students appreciate others too. At the end, students formed a train connected with balloons and were asked to move a short distance which taught the students value of connection and bond. And with this the 2-days workshop ended. Dr Gazal Sharma was the moderator for the 2 days workshop. These 2 days workshop sensitized the students about the benefits of having positive attitude and how one can build positive attitude. The students are also made to learn on setting priorities and time management. Team building and ability to generate leadership qualities etc. were the key take aways of the students from this workshop. The workshop ended with the felicitation ceremony where resource person was felicitated by Dean Academics Dr Vikas Chawla and students submitted the feedback was collected in the predesigned performa.
